

The feeling of the cross country

I had butterflies in my tummy. The water that went into my shoes felt like squished sandwiches in my shoes. The bang from the gun was louder than lightning crushing down a tree.

I felt thirstier than a camel in the desert when I finished running.

Author: Natania